STOCKHOLM.

The City of a Thousand Islands and Rocky Reefs.

From Sweden's capital an enthusiast the visitor writes: "The sky has an almost Italian brilliance as the sun shines clear and bright on the glittering levels of the lagoons that divide the new town from the old. Across the water, on which a fleet of white ferries ply, rises the broad front of the palace, the avenue of which is relieved by the rarest glow which time has lent to the brickwork. In front of the palace runs a broad quay crowded with shipping, behind which one may catch peeps of narrow, winding streets, with sloping roofs and painted houses bent with age. The square front of the palace rises above the red and gray roofs, seemingly to command the old city. On my right the waters narrow to a swift rushing stream, over which a stately bridge has been thrown, uniting the palace with the picturesque pile of the opera house, or, rather, with the broad square, in which it stands. Behind the opera house lie broad streets of modern houses, in which there are unexpected glimpses of waterways crowded with shipping.

"Stockholm is built on a series of islands formed by Lake Malaren. It is indeed, the city of a thousand islands and rocky reefs, which are sown broadcast many miles beyond the mainland, where the lake and river join the sea.
The steamers which ply up and down the lake afford endless excursions.
Seaward you may sail a day among the islands until you reach the long, low reefs on which the Baltic meets the sea. In spite of their cold climate the Swedes delight in the open air. After the indoor life of English or American cities it is a great pleasure to take one's meals out of doors, although it may sometimes be necessary to dine wrapped in an overcoat. We have seen people dining in the Tivoli gardens beneath awnings and umbrellas in the rain. This habit may explain the health and vigor of the Swedes."

The Gates of Paradise.

When the plague which visited Florence in the year 1400 had subsided the people decided as a thank offering to add bronze gates to the baptistery of the Church of St. John the Baptist, and the guild of merchants invited the best artists of the day to compete. The design of Ghiberti was considered faultless, and he was entrusted with the work on Nov. 23, 1403. It was twenty-one years before the two folding doors were completed, and so exquisite was their design and workmanship that Michael Angelo a century later said of them, "They are worthy to be the gates of paradise." This applied also to another door wrought and designed by the same artist, which was put in place June 16, 1452, a most important creation of Florentine art and one which evidently influenced Michael Angelo himself.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Crazy people never think they are crazy. Are you crazy?

The average person places too much confidence in an apology.

People are not so much interested in your grievances as you think they are.
It is one thing to appreciate a compliment and another thing to swallow it.

A woman never used powder that a man didn't notice it. But women say, "Men are so easily fooled!" Men don't like men very well; women don't like women very well either.
And men quarrel with women sometimes.

When a man regrets that he didn't get much schooling in his youth, somehow his sons who have to go to school don't sympathize with him as much as he expected.—Athenian Globe.

The Heart an Inner Garden.

He who would have beautiful roses in his garden must have beautiful roses in his heart. It is the inner garden. He must love them well and always. To win he must woo, as Jacob wooed Laban's daughter, though drought and frost consume. He must have not only the glowing imagination, the enthusiasm and the passion, but the tenderness, the thoughtfulness, the reverence of love.—Dean Hole.

The Final Blow.

It is said that often when a woman says "no" she means "yes," but there are signs which discourage even the most hopeful and persistent wooer.

"I didn't so much mind Hetty's saying she'd as soon marry a jumping jack as me," said Ethan Hatch for-lornly to a sympathetic friend, "nor I didn't much care when she said she'd rather stay at home than go out to Jordan's park with such a slow coach as I was, but when she told me she'd got to help her mother iron when I asked her to go with me down to the Center for some ice cream soda I saw 'twasn't much use hanging on any longer."

Handy Feet.

Mr. Nolan's description of an acrobatic performance was clear enough to any listener, although his excitement over it led his tongue, as usual, into unfrequent mazes of speech.

"He was a wonderful man, that man was," said Mr. Nolan to his audience.
"You'd see him go up a ladder with the find of it up in the air and the bottom of it resting on a kind of a sofa pillar, an' you'd say, 'There's a man going to his death.'"

"But was he? Not a bit of it! Any man that can get such a foothold on the air with his hands and be as handy with his feet as a monkey there's no fear for him!"—Youth's Companion.

Don't Miss It!

New Idea Woman's Magazine.

A dashing sketch of that fascinating sport—ice skating—is the subject chosen for the frontispiece in the February New Idea Woman's Magazine. Norah Anderson describes in an entertaining article "The Management of Private Theatricals." The first of a series of tales of mystery and adventure, "From the Career of Clive Rayner," appears in this number. "The Walls of Jericho" is a story by Mabel Craft Deering, of a girl who after many disappointments makes her way with her pen as a result of much hard work and perseverance. A pathetic glimpse into a child's heart, balanced by touches of humor which his quaint surroundings afford, are told in the story "A Benighted Mist" by Sarah Ruth Quigley. Other articles in this number are "Two Women Inventors," by Julia D. Cowles; "The History of a Papilio Turnus Butterfly," by Ellen Robertson Miller, and "The New Hand Arts," by Mary H. Northend. Harriet Martin adds another talk to business women. In the distribution of suitable verse and stories the children have not been forgotten. Two good animal stories will appeal particularly to the young reader. The special article on dress deals with rain and dust coats, several drawings indicating the latest modifications in these garments.

THE CENTRAL THEATRE

San Francisco

Quite a departure will be made in the style of play at the popular Central Theatre the coming week. A musical comedy-drama will be played that will show the company in an entirely new field. The title is "How Baxter Battled In" and it is full of the funniest kind of situations and there is at the same time a charming dramatic plot. There will be a host of specialties introduced and the performance will become of the finest ever given at this house. All the favorites of the splendid new company will be in the cast and the play will be mounted in the usual excellent style of all productions under Mr. Bishop's management.

SPORTS OF THE BLIND.

Plenty of Amusement For Those Who Are Deaf or Blind.

With closed eyes two young men in the blind asylum were playing chess. The board they played on had the black squares raised and the white ones sunken, while the black pieces were rough and the white ones smooth. "Give us this handicap on account of our blindness," said one of the young men, "and we will play as quick and accurate a game of chess as anybody. Give us checkers and a checkerboard constructed on the same plan, and there, too, our playing will equal yours. 'I would rather be blind than deaf,' he went on. 'Blindness doesn't rob you of much. The blind are excellent anglers. They play a good game of onchro or poker or bridge. They use cards that have embossed pins.' "The blind are good runners, good gymnasts. In our last sports the hundred yards were done in under twelve seconds, and on the horizontal and parallel bars the giant swing, the cork-screw, the straight arm balance and the finger balance were executed in a way that elicited salvos of applause." New York Press.

His Pursuit.

"May I ask," inquired the melancholy stranger, "what is your pursuit in life?" "It depends," replied Subbubs, "upon whether I'm going or coming. It's the 7:48 train in the morning and the 6:12 at night."—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE PUEBLO INDIANS.

Their Religion Is in a Way a Species of Water Worship.

Eagle feathers are much used in the ceremonials of the Pueblo Indians, and in order to make sure of a supply the Zunis keep the birds in cages, plucking a few feathers whenever they happen to want them. On the other hand, the Moki have eagles' nests located at various spots within thirty or forty miles of their towns, which are considered the property of different clans among them. The eagle lays its eggs in the same nest year after year, and the clans inherit rights to certain nests from generation to generation. The eagles are not killed, but the new fledged young ones are taken from the nest—that is to say, all but one or two, which must be left. To remind the eagle god to encourage the laying of more eggs by the birds an egg carved out of wood is placed where the divinity will be sure to see it; also, after being plucked, the eaglets are carefully buried in a certain cleft in the rocks, which is the eagle cemetery. Here the eagles have been interred for centuries, and the place is very sacred. The Pueblo Indians have a tradition of the flood, and they say that the turkey is marked in commemoration of that event, its tail being black at the end where it was dragged through the mud after the water had subsided. The duck is another sacred bird, being associated with water. From the Pueblo point of view, anything that is related to the all precious water in any way is an object of worship. Their religion is made up to a great extent of aquatic divinities and might be called a species of water worship.

How to Clean Old Book Plates.

To restore old book plates that have been injured by age and damp proceed as follows: Place upon a flat surface a sheet of white paper somewhat larger than the print to be cleaned. Carefully dampen the print on both sides with a soft, wet sponge and then saturate it with a mixture of chloride of lime and oxalic acid dissolved in about equal proportions in a pint of cold water. You can tell when the mixture is right by its turning magenta color. Continue to apply it until every stain or spot has disappeared and then with a clean sponge wash the print freely with cold water.

Fighting Shows Race.

"By the way they fight I can tell men's nationality," said a policeman. An Englishman, when he is going to fight, throws his hat and coat in a blustering, bluffing way on the ground. A Scot pulls his hat down tight on his head and buttons his coat carefully. The canny Scot is not going to endanger any of his property. An Irishman appeals to the crowd to hold his coat. The Celtic nature desires sympathy and tries to build it up. A German, methodical, precise, folds his hat on top of it to hold it down. An American is so anxious to pitch in and have the thing over that he starts fighting without giving a thought to hat or coat."—New York Press.

The London Police.

When the scheme was first broached fierce opposition developed to the establishment of London's metropolitan police. In September, 1829, Police to patrol the streets of London? Such a scheme was "repugnant to the spirit of English law and to the theory of free government," according to an editorial in the Standard of the day. "As a system of clandestine intelligence the thing is complete," it went on. "The low constable is instructed to make himself acquainted with the inhabitants of every house within his beat. And how is this information to be obtained but by the pumping of the servants?"
